Super Story

Once, a meshulach from one of the yeshivos came to Reb Yosef Ber on an erev Shabbos. As it was nearing evening, Reb Yosef Ber invited him to spend the Shabbos with him. "Before you change your clothes for Shabbos, will you please loan me five pennies?" Reb Yosef Ber asked the meshulach. The guest didn't hesitate. He took out five kopeks and gave them to the Rav. On Motzaei Shabbos, after Havdalah, Reb Yosef Ber took out the same five kopeks and returned them to his guest. The meshulach was astonished. "If the master will excuse my impudence, I would like to ask him a question," he said. "You may ask," replied the gaon. "Why did you borrow five kopeks from me erev Shabbos, and now after Shabbos return them?" "It's simple," replied Reb Yosef Ber. "You are always traveling around the country, from town to town and from city to city, always borrowing, begging and pleading for money for the yeshiva. You are constantly urging people to give charity, and you are instrumental in providing them with great mitzvos. But you, however, never have the opportunity of gemilas chesed, helping others by loans or charity. Therefore, I wanted you to also have the mitzvah of loaning money which you so kindly did erev Shabbos."
